This is the first book in The Dark Artifices, which is chronologically the fourth in The Shadowhunter Chronicles. The book tells the story of events that took place in the Los Angeles area in 2012, focusing on the residents of the Los Angeles Institute. The title was based on Annabel Lee's Edgar Allan Poe and all the titles of the chapters are lines from the poem. The plot Emma Carsters lived with the Blackthorne family, her parabatai, Julian, his brothers and sisters Livi, Tai, Dru and Tavvi, and their uncle, Arthur, at the Los Angeles Institute after the death of her parents during the Dark War five years ago. Growing up in a huge Shadowhunter, she is still investigating the true cause of her parents' death, despite Klav telling her they were murdered by the late Sebastian Morgenstern. According to Johnny Hand, a worldly shop shopkeeper from the Shadow Market, such murders have befallen eleven faeries whose appearance has been ostracized by Klav in a cold world for their support of Endarkened. Later, Emma also investigates the mundane murder, apparently the same criminal who killed the faeries. Tai's research indicates that victims were killed in sacred places known as the line of lei as part of a dark ritual. Meanwhile, Julian struggles between running the Institute, as Arthur functionally deranged his previous experience in Fairy, and his love for Emma, despite being parabatai forbidden to pursue a romantic relationship. He receives a cure for Arthur's disease from Malcolm Fade, the High Sorcerer of Los Angeles. Diane Wrayburn occasionally helps younger Shadowhunters with institute content, but refuses to replace Arthur as leader and frequently leaves for other missions. One day Wild Hunt, a group of traveling faeries led by Gwyn ap Nuded, arrives to deliver Mark, Blackthorne's older brother, kidnapped by them during the Dark War. They demand that the Shadow Hunters solve the murders of the faeries - secretly, because of the cold world - otherwise they will take Mark back. Changed by then, in Fairy, Mark finds solace only in Christine Rosales, a shadow hunter from the Mexico City Institute, who is currently based in Los Angeles. With the help of Mark, Emma finds a cave that serves as a point of convergence of the lines of the lei, being able to take evidence before attacking the demons. Tai's research on the mundane victim points to the victim's girlfriend, who committed suicide in her home. Accepting the invitation to the Lottery, Emma and Julian are attacked by demons, and the latter is seriously injured. Although Emma manages to quickly heal him, Ty and Livvy translate testimonies from the cave and wonder that these are excerpts from Annabelle Lee, Edgar Allan Poe's last poem. Meanwhile, Emma, Julian, Mark and Christina visit the Lottery and see that it is held by a cult whose members are killed to achieve good luck. Emma and Julian question Rook further, finding out where Casper Sterling, the last lottery winner, now lives, and that lottery participants are followers of the mysterious Guardian before shoed away when they and Ty meet their son, Kit. Emma returns to the cave and finds a portal that transports her to the sea. Julian, through his parabatai connection, saves her. Subsequently, they confess their love for each of them. Eventually, Tai fully translates 42 carved on the bodies of the victims and learns that the ritual, which requires thirteen victims, also requires Blackthorn blood. Emma and Christina race after Sterling, but it's too late to stop him from killing the thirteenth victim, the witch. Sterling himself is killed by followers, his hand cut and taken. They unexpectedly meet with Diego Rosales, Christina's ex-boyfriend and the reason she left Mexico City. Diego is a Centurion graduate of Sholomanche and claims that he was sent to explore the Guardian ritual, which aims to resurrect someone. Back home, the Blackthorns connect the ritual to an old Shadowhunter tale, Lady Midnight. In the story, the woman was killed by her parents, and her lover made a deal with King Fay to perform a ritual that required the blood of Blackthorne and Black Tom dead. Meanwhile, Mark was visited several times by his boyfriend from The Wild Hunt, the unseen Prince Kieran. Kieran is jealous of Mark's growing relationship with Christina. When Kieran eavesdrops as Mark tells her of Gwyn's weakness, he reports it to Gwyn, who comes along with Yarat, King Unzel's right-hand man, to punish Mark. Julian initially volunteered, but Emma, unable to see him tortured, volunteered himself and was seriously injured. This forces Mark to give up on going back to Wild Hunt and agree to be a Shadow Hunter. After all, the Blackthorns research their family history and find out that Lady Midnight is based on the story of Annabelle Blackthorn, a Shadowhunter who fell in love with a sorcerer. Emma calls Lady, the latter admits he worked with the Guardian to trick lottery winners. When she steals the evidence, she realizes that Malcolm is the Guardian. However, before they come true, Malcolm tricked Dru to give him Tavvi. Kieran visits the Institute and, in good faith, reveals two details: Yarat works with Malcolm, and Emma's parents were killed to check the spell of resurrection. The group and Kieran go to the cave. Faced with Malcolm, he threatens to solve Diana's secret before knocking her out. Younger ShadowHunters fight Malcolm and Emma Steal the Hand of Glory, which contains the hands of Lottery winners. After being cornered, Emma opens a cave portal, sending Malcolm to be eaten by sea demons. The Shadowhunters head home and are greeted by Clary Fairchild, Jace Herondale, and the Lightwood Inquisitor, fresh from a visit to Simon Lovelace and Isabelle Light wood attending the party. All three agree to allow Mark to stay in Los Angeles. Meanwhile, after the death of Malcolm, Rook loses protection in his house and immediately washed up by demons. Keith rescues Tessa Gray and Jem Carsters and says he is a descendant of The Lost Herondale. Then they'll take him to the Los Angeles Institute. Approaching Jem, Emma is told that the parabataes, who are in love with each other, have strengthened the run and they will also bring suffering to all around. With that in mind, she breaks up with Julian and pretends to date Mark. In the epilogue, Annabel Blackthorne opens her eyes. The book's reception has received mixed reactions since its publication. Some reviews, like the thenational.ae offers good things about the book, he says: Claire's Imagination once again fills the pages with a gripping world that promises political deviation, endless drama and unwavering love. The Palatinate.org.uk reviewed the book as: Lady Midnight may not be Cassandra Clare's best work, but fans of The Mortal Instruments and The Infernal Devices are still likely to find it interesting to read. Common Sense Media said that fans of Shadowhunter Chronicles will love this book, but anyone who expects something new is likely to be disappointed. However, The Guardian also agreed that the book was bloated and not the best work, calling it predictable. Another review appreciates the book, quoting: The world in which Cassandra Clare created in her Shadowhunter series, slightly chills, Kirkus also praised the book, saying that fans of her books will enjoy new characters that are full of secret fervor and murderous zeal.
